

Alaska

the land of wilderness & wildlife

Mt McKinley - credit Anthony Gilliam

Often regarded as the trip of a lifetime, many people dream of visiting Alaska. And is it any wonder! From towering, ice-capped mountains, glaciers and ribbons of the northern lights dancing in the night sky to grizzly bears, majestic breaching whales and soaring bald eagles, Alaska conjures up many incredible images. And then there are the equally amazing experiences - many of them unique to Alaska - panning for gold, dog sledding or watching native dancers, just to name a few.

There are a huge number of options for the traveller to explore this magnificent state. Take your choice of an escorted tour, or go your own way by catching a train on the scenic Alaskan Railroad, hiring a car or even a motorhome.

If cruising is more your scene, then include Alaska's famous 'Inside Passage'. Choose from the large cruise ship options or if it's more of an intimate, adventurous cruise you're after, the small ship cruises will get you close to all the wilderness action. For the independent traveller, the Alaska Marine Highway Ferry System would be just your thing.

So whether you're interested in scenic beauty, wilderness, wildlife, friendly locals, history, adventure, culture or all of those things, Alaska could be just the place for your next holiday.
